

graduate student currently living in South Korea As a graduate student living in South Korea, there are numerous opportunities available to you. You can take advantage of the vibrant educational environment by attending lectures at a local university or language institute. Additionally, there are many cultural and language exchange programs that can bring you into contact with locals and allow you to practice your language skills. South Korea is also a great place to get involved in research projects and build professional networks.