

Photo oxidation is a chemical process where a reactant molecule is oxidized, or loses electrons, when exposed to ultraviolet (UV) radiation. This process has broad applications in many industrial and domestic products where it is used to clean, disinfect, or catalyze chemical reactions. In nature, photo oxidation is a critical part of the global carbon cycle and helps regulate the Earth's climate.