

researchers and postdocs can be found in a variety of research labs, projects, and other research programs throughout UBC. From the fields of Medicine to Engineering, and from the departments of Computer Science to Earth and Ocean Sciences, UBC researchers and postdocs contribute to knowledge discovery and the progress of science in a variety of ways, from conducting original research, to providing technical advice and assistance to colleagues, to teaching courses and laboratory sessions.