

Differential equations are equations that involve functions and their derivatives that describe a relationship between changes in the function values over time or in space. These equations can be used to model nearly any physical system, such as the dynamics of a pendulum or the movement of air through a pipe. Solutions to differential equations can be used to understand the behavior of a system over time in various scenarios.

Length: 10000